

FSO SERVICES NEWS

APRIL 2024

We help clients maintain a simple and compliant security program.

Working with your Senior Management Official (SMO)

Never before has your Senior Management Official (SMO) played such a vital role in the success of your industrial security program.

With the release of the latest NISPOM, your SMO must be actively engaged and aware of threats to your organization and classified data. You should be meeting with your SMO regularly to review threats, and self-inspections, and discuss initiatives to bolster your security program.

We provide templates and resources to our clients to help them maximize time with their SMO and drive success.

Briefing your Employees on Foreign Travel

Foreign travel briefings are critical for your employees who are leaving the country. As FSOs, we must upload foreign travel data to DISS when employees provide this to us.

During the next periodical reinvestigation of a cleared employee, a mismatch between the investigation and what is in DISS can lead to questions and delays for the investigator.

If you are struggling with these regulations, contact us to learn more about our processes that streamline foreign travel reporting and meet requirements.

Training Resources Available on STEPP

STEPP is a training platform with valuable training for your employees and security professionals. Explore the offerings and check back periodically to see what new courses have been added.

Every security program is only as strong as its weakest link so share and mandate training where appropriate to be sure your organization demonstrates a robust security program and receives a superior audit.
